ANOTHER TREATY

Now that the admirals and statesmen have secured the future of bigger and better navies with a new treaty, it is time to regularize another maritime matter. The elephantine Queen Mary is all but ready to cross the Atlantic for a noisy reception in New York harbor. The amazing Normandie already is thundering back and forth to Europe and trying to keep track of its passengers. Rumor has mentioned the possibility of an American challenge to the huge creations of British and French shipbuilders.

Aside from the advisability of making such enormous investments in national pride is the fact that not even pride is being satisfied with dividends. France and Britain are quibbling futilely over the size of their maritime monsters—futilely because there is no established commission to settle permanently the vexing questions of tonnage and length. The unforeseen outcome of their race for supremacy is a dead heat, with neither one satisfied. If the United States were to add its entry to theirs, publicity experts would exhaust themselves trying to outdo each other in exaggerated claims.

Clearly, this is the time to reach another agreement. An international body of ship weighers and measurers should be established without delay. Of course, no one will accept its findings as the last word, but no one takes the League covenant, the Locarno pact or the Kellogg-Briand pact seriously, either.

REVISED RATINGS

No. 1 men have come and gone rapidly through the front and rear doors of the White House during the last three years. There were Moley, Sprague, Johnson, Frankfurter, Tugwell, Baruch and Richberg, to name the most prominent ones. Each in his turn was supposed to have been President Roosevelt's favorite. Some no longer call at the executive offices; others still have easy access to the presidential ear.

It is a matter of interest that Donald Richberg, once called assistant president of the United States, has moved up recently from well down in the list to at least a temporary rating of No. 1 White House consultant. No one apparently had been giving the matter any special thought, but it was generally assumed that Mr. Richberg had dropped out of the picture. Is it barely possible that Gen. Johnson, the friendly castigator, will be renewing old ties and affiliations next? The general, too, was supposed to be an expert at conciliating big business. When Barney Baruch returns to the fold, if ever, it will be possible to say definitely that the new deal has been dealt and the cards are being shuffled again.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, March 28—Purely personal piffle: I can't read a book until undressed and in bed. Patsy Kelly is the No. 1 picture stealer. Edward Everett Horton a runner-up. Most sickening prison expose of the generation—that at Joliet. No writer makes the experiences of others more entertaining than Boyden Sparks.

Had he lived in any one of the European capitals, it would now have a Victor Herbert Square. Burr MacIntosh's philosophy at 74 is: "Keep going and you will always pull through." And he's about proved it. For many years I thought estuary had something to do with willis.

Homer Croy who always lists his accomplishments to his letter signature, is now a "fancy and double note whistler and insect mimic." Whenever I see a picture of Connie Mack I think of Andrew Mellon and vice versa. In the Icelandic they pray to God as Mind.

Rudy Vallee's shrewd showmanship: Standing aside when new talent scores on his radio program. Only performers sure of themselves do that. Gifford Pinchot's name suggests tight shoes. If I were passing out a medal for the season's most satisfying play, it would go to "Libel."

Rick Thomas, girl shyest of my school day friends, is the father of ten children. Most glamorous book title: Rex Beach's "The Silver Horde"—a story of salmon fishing. And salmon desperately fighting their way back to their birthplace to spawn and die is Nature's most poignant miracle. Minor enthusiasm: Governor Lehman. Neatest of the spat wearers: Goadby Loew. More than half my life has been spent in New York yet I feel rooted to the middle west. America's slimmest menace—the shyler lawyer. The most decently inquisitive mind ever encountered: Roscoe Peacock's. Rebecca West has about become my favorite woman writer. Somerset Maugham did not forget Ray Long and his editorial genius in the preface to his latest book. So many writers have. I used to occupy a table every sun-down on the Etoule side of Poquet's just to watch Capt. Alfred Dreyfus. France's "living dead man," sit and stare.

I have often stood an hour—with my arches!—listening to jewelry auctioneers. No actor ever touched Holbrook Blinn for diction. He's the only one I ever heard pronounce "gusto" correctly. I can eat hamburger only in a lunch wagon after midnight. Dandy hotels for fiction writers: Sheppard's, Raffles at Singapore and the Astor at Shanghai. One of America's most accurate reporters: Raymond G. Carroll. No matter how poor their play, I enjoy watching the Gish girls act. Imagine Soviet Moscow permitting a speaker to criticize Communism and Stalin on the air. And how about that charge of the American Mercury that several leading New York book reviewers are radicals?

Whenever they begin swing music, I carry out Al Smith's bleat and take a walk. W. A. Brady was once blackballed by the Lambs because they feared he might bring his prize fighter James J. Corbett to the club. Years later Corbett, joining the Lambs, inspired its biggest celebration. One popular tune of which I never tire: "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Story: The widow of a great composer received $2,500 for one year's royalties after his death. She sent it back saying her lawyer had so advised her. By special messenger came apology. The bookkeeper had left off a final cipher, it was explained. A true tale, too.

A man I know lost his sense of smell six months and professes to be sorry he regained it. Never entered a Broadway night place without seeing Dr. Leo Michel. Ten years from now newspaper columns will have no by-lines. Giggles of the month: Douglas Fairbanks traveling incognito. Hint for Utopia: Briefer radio ad. announcements. A surgeon once told me of an unfailing symptom of every user of a certain narcotic. Since then I have had two terrible shocks. The most furious chain smoker I know is Col. Ed Eimms, of Kentucky. A midnight electrocution in Sing Sing and zip goes my night's sleep. I've settled down to Wallace Beery as the actor I like best to watch on the screen.

An ash tray on my desk which, when spun top-like, sounds like a train pulling out. I also do tricks with strings. At a poker game one night I heard Bob Ripley say: "Some day I'm going to make enough money to hire a secretary." We all laughed heartily. He has a dozen or so now. My wife threatens to leave me if I do not quit pronouncing Cincinnati that way and I get oopsie looking at herringbone cloth.

THE STARS SAY

For Sunday, March 29

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of a very lively day, with business and all pertaining to writings and publicity under good auspices. There is a sign of travel, removal or change, possibly with new interests and contacts of a beneficial nature. New contracts should be considered, since present employment is not under a satisfactory or encouraging aspect. The change will be to the advantage. There may be some slight anxiety or grief of a personal nature.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of advantageous change with new interest, environs and associations. A change in employment would prove profitable.

A child born on this day may be versatile, quick-witted, fond of novelty and innovation and may do better at a distance than at home, although it will be affectionate and fond of home.

For Monday, March 30

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very enterprising and lively day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects of leading planets. This spirited condition likely will follow the breaking up of a crystallized state of affairs, thwarting all progress and prosperity. Lands and all real possessions should increase under this benefic sway and there also may be gains from an elder.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much to stabilize their affairs and increase their possessions, especially in lands. There will be a decided breaking up of old stagnations and impediments. Elders may confer benefits, as may mergers, combines or secret societies. The domestic, social and romantic associations will be particularly lively and happy.

A child born on this day may be serious, studious, diligent and dependable. It also may have an affectionate and lovable nature and be very popular.

"Hooray!—She's here!"

YOUNG LASHES OHIO SALES TAX

Democratic Governor Candidate Calls for "Courageous Economy and Courageous Taxation"

(By Associated Press)
AKRON, March 28.—Congressman-at-Large Stephen M. Young condemned the Ohio sales tax and called for "courageous economy and courageous taxation," as he opened his speaking campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination here.

He told the Summit County Democratic Women's Federation the sales tax was "cowardly" and "violated every principle of just taxation."

"Let us pay as we go," he said. "It takes a good man to pay taxes. Any political phony can be a taxpayer."

"Needs of the Hour"
"The needs of the hour are for sweeping and drastic economies from the governor of Ohio right down the line and for just taxation."

"The present governor not only has failed to take steps toward repeal of the sales tax, but recommended its continuance."

Mrs. Martin L. Davey, wife of the governor, and their daughter, Mrs. Evangeline Smith of Kent, sat at the speaker's table. Davey was unable to attend. Dennis Dunlavy of Ashtabula, candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, defended Davey's record in office.

Young asserted he represented "no faction in the Democratic party" but "thousands of Democrats of all groups in all parts of Ohio who are intent upon restoring and maintaining good government."

"As your congressman I have supported the recovery program of President Roosevelt," he said.

Will Ask for Repeal
"As your governor I will direct the immediate repeal of the sales tax, particularly as it applies to food, clothing and medicine."

Dunlavy said Davey had saved Ohio taxpayers $30,000,000 a year. "Of course no one likes the sales tax," he said, "neither former Governor George White nor the general assembly was able to figure out any other means of keeping citizens from the poor house. The people still must be fed and the aged cared for."

Colonial Irrigations
NOWADAYS WE hear a great deal about "colonial irrigations." In spite of the many advantages of well-given irrigations in suitable cases, it is probable that many persons are unwisely depending on this form of treatment.

A report from the Mayo Clinic was recently published in the Journal of American Medical Association. It states that this treatment has been outrageously exploited, not only by the out and out charlatan, but by persons who innocently offer this procedure as a "cure all."

One who suffers from some disorder of the large intestine should consult with a doctor before resorting to any form of treatment. If the doctor advises colonial irrigation he does it only after a complete examination. There is no doubt that when indicated such irrigations are of value in the control of certain intestinal disorders.

May Be Harmful
It is feared that many of the solutions used in the irrigations are often more irritating and harmful than beneficial. In fact many specialists claim that few solutions are useful. They believe that ordinary tap water or a weak solution of sodium chloride, ordinary table salt, used at body temperature is far more likely to be satisfactory.

There are other mistaken ideas about this procedure. One is the belief that it is necessary to employ an elaborate device of some sort. In skilled hands this is all right and trained persons become skillful indeed. But as a matter of fact, all that is really necessary is a simple enema bag and rubber tubing.

I do not wish to give the impression that colonial irrigations are without value. As a matter of fact, they may have a most important part in the treatment of such diseases as mucous colitis and other inflammatory disturbances of the colon. In these disorders it is necessary to keep the bowel as clean as possible. This is best accomplished by irrigating the colon daily with warm water before going to bed.

Mineral Oil
In suitable cases it is well to use pure mineral oil for irrigation purposes. When this is done it is necessary for the patient to remain in bed for ten hours, in order that the oil may be retained long enough to serve its purpose.

Colonial irrigations are often advised in the treatment of infection of the intestinal canal, which may be the underlying cause of rheumatism, arthritis, heart disease or kidney disease. Faulty bowel evacuation leads to the absorption of toxins or poisons. It is a hindrance to health and long life. But this condition is not corrected by colonial irrigations alone.

Answers to Health Queries
A Daily Reader. Q.—What would cause a short period of dizziness and blindness when bending over and after raising oneself to an upright position? The same condition is apt to occur after climbing a flight of steps, and in this case is complicated by rapid beating of the heart. The veins are very prominent in the forearms—especially when the arms are lowered. Is there any connection between these two conditions? I have been told that it may be due to overeating of too stimulating foods.

A.—Be sure to overcome any tendency to auto-intoxication. Keep the system clear. Avoid overeating and indigestion. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2: Have the heart examined. Avoid too much rich, heavy food. Establish regular habits. For further particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

Resignation of Robert E. "DAUGHTERS OF VENUS"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

SYNOPSIS

Juliet Rankin's pulchritude wins her an executive position in the beauty institute operated by wealthy Madame Robert. At first, Thomas O'Hara, the handsome manager, is antagonistic toward Juliet, but he finally admits he is in love with her and has been trying to fight that feeling. Due to fatal resemblance to her dead sweetheart, Juliet submits to O'Hara's caresses. Finding them together, Dr. Franz Von Guerdon, beauty specialist, also in love with Juliet, is insanely jealous. He threatens to kill Juliet if she bothers with O'Hara, stating that she belongs to him. Later, Juliet tries to convince O'Hara that they do not love each other but were both overcome with emotion the night she permitted him to kiss her. He shows her an engagement and a wedding ring, saying: "Here's how much I meant to you. I was! Juliet is assigned to work with Von Guerdon. It is when he concentrates on his work, ignoring her, that Juliet likes him best. Katie Schmidt, a homely, poorly-dressed, illiterate girl, calls for an estimate on a facial operation. Without flinching, Katie hears it would cost $3,000. Saying "I ain't got it and I will never have that much," she disappears into the obscurity from which she had come. Juliet refuses Von Guerdon's invitation to dinner. That night, lonely and restless, she regrets her action. She even welcomes a visit from meek, little McSpadden, who brings Juliet some plants for her new apartment. Mrs. McSpadden arrives just as they are having a cocktail and literally drags her husband out. Juliet is put in charge of the "Appointment Desk" at which wealthy women pay fabulous sums to be rejuvenated. Juliet often thinks of poor Katie Schmidt as clients sign checks as though wealth spurted out of a fountain pen.

CHAPTER XVI

Then, somehow, shabby Katie Schmidt again got past the doorkeeper and the attendants and the supercilious attaches, and the appointment desk and present her grubby self to Juliet.

"I got it!" she cried fiercely. "Every cent, and some more besides."

There was no abasement in this cry, but a defiant and triumphant zeal as she stood in front of Juliet, all askew and pasty and spotty. She had succeeded, at last, in snapping the chains that bound her to a life of derisive slights and dreary menial labor. Somewhere, in the distance, there must have been an irresistible spark, a fiery center of energy, that ignited her out of heaven knew how.

"Good!" exclaimed Juliet gladly, scarcely believing Katie's statement. "It's a lot of money—three thousand dollars, wasn't it? Sounds almost impossible."

The girl set her scruffy handbag on the handsome desk and twisted the clasp.

"Think I'm lying?"

A flare of childish and aggressive pride burned in her voice as she drew out a loose wad of banknotes and tossed them in front of Juliet.

"There yuh are," she said, with an ironical smile. "Count it fer herself and see."

Juliet began to smile and sort out the money.

"Good work, Katie!" said Juliet. "I congratulate you. You've wanted this terribly haven't you? You know what it must mean to you?"

"No, you don't know, 'cause you never was ugly as me."

Katie sat down, never taking her eyes off Juliet, whose count of the money totalled thirty-five hundred dollars.

"This is a lot of money to be carrying around in a handbag," said Juliet. "I'll just take it in to the cashier and have it put in the safe to your credit. That is, if you'll trust me with it."

"C'er'nly, I'll trust yuh, with it," grinned Katie. "You ain't the kind to steal anything. When are they 'goin' to start work on me?"

"I'll get in touch with Dr. Von Guerdon right away," Juliet told her, and when she returned from the cashier Von Guerdon said over the phone he would see Katie almost at once.

But where on earth did you ever get so much cash at one time?" Juliet asked curiously. "It doesn't seem like much money on a check but it's terrific when you look at it in the actual currency."

"Sold the chicken farm me an' mother owned," said Katie casually. "Maw she died last year. I done it through the bank and made me stime my money in cash. Do you think I'll be good-looking enough to go on the stage when they get through with me?"

An odd kind of pity for the little girl took possession of Juliet, and everything she now said to the girl was warm with solicitude and encouragement and tolerance.

"Oh, I wouldn't think about the stage just yet," she advised. "It will take at least six weeks here. There's no chance on the stage for anyone who doesn't have exceptional talent and training in some definite line. Have you any relatives?"

"Not a soul in the world."

"Well then, I'd begin making plans to get into some pleasant and profitable work I was suited for. I'd be glad to do anything I can to help you. And there is another thing I'd like to mention to you if you're sure you won't mind my being frank."

"Ford no! You couldn't hurt my feelings. Ever since the day up-til now I've thought about you. I'd like to take you as my model and make you like you in everything. I don't mean in looks—I mean the way you carry yourself, so smooth and refined. Of course it's too late for me to go back to school."

"That's exactly what I meant," said Juliet seriously. "You really should improve yourself mentally, Katie. Your speech for instance, and your grammar. If I get some books will you study them?"

"You're darn right I will," returned Katie enthusiastically. "Men don't like a girl to be roughneck, do they?"

"Of course not. Women don't like it either. You're still frightfully young and there is plenty of time to polish up wonderfully."

A smudge of tears began to tremble on Katie's lower lashes.

"I never had a friend like you in my life," she said shakily. "People always made fun of me. They did not know what I was like—inside."

Juliet found herself beginning to blink and realized that if this kept up any longer her own mascara would start running.

"Well, those days are past," she said brightly. "You're going to be all right inside and outside both."

A tiny little handkerchief dabbed at Katie's eyes and she emerged smiling.

"I knew you'd be this way the first time I laid eyes on yuh," she said. "Maybe sometime I can pay you back. O yes—there's somepin else. I won't have to leave the place at all until I am done over completely, will I?"

"Not unless you want to. You can stay right in your room."

"An' that Mr. O'Hara upstairs—will I see him?"

"Probably not," said Juliet. "He won't have anything to do with your case."

Disappointment settled like a cloud of dust on Katie's sallow countenance.

"Oh gee! I'd counted on him too. You ain't crazy about him yourself, are you Miss Rankin?"

"I most certainly am not," returned Juliet vigorously.

"I'm sure glad you ain't," breathed Katie. "Maybe you'll fix it up so he'll come in and see me sometime. He's just about the swellest thing I've come across. Maybe you could fix it up, huh? I mean after I'm all beautified?"

When the girl had gone upstairs into Von Guerdon's charge it seemed to Juliet that her palatial office was somehow discordant and unpleasant.

The thought of O'Hara—and Katie Schmidt—had a bitter tang. It was utterly and ridiculously impossible, she assured herself firmly, that she could feel the faintest vibration of jealousy about O'Hara.

And certainly not in connection with that little warped thing who had just gone upstairs. Such an idea was so obnoxious that she promptly threw it out of her head—and wondered why it kept trying to get in again.

Then Juliet did a foolish thing. Just to prove to herself, absolutely, that she couldn't possibly be jealous (the absurdity of it) she got O'Hara on the telephone.

"Remember that little Katie Schmidt?"

"Never heard of her."

"Oh yes you did. The one with the nose and the eyes."

O'Hara still didn't know who she was talking about and told her so unpleasantly. Since Juliet had ejected him from her life he had kept aloof trying conscientiously to keep her out of his mind. The only way he knew to accomplish this was by a determined sullenness.

"Your little friend, the one you brought to Von Guerdon to have beautified."

"Oh—sure. Sure I remember that kid. What about her?"

"Well, she's come back with three thousand dollars in cash to get rebuilt, poor little thing. And she asked very pointedly about you—thinks you're perfectly marvelous and wants me to fix it up for her after Von Guerdon's finished."

Juliet realized she was being a bit catty and scratchy and niggling—but there it was. Curiously it gave her a queer quick of pleasure to badger O'Hara this way.

"That's fine," responded O'Hara. "Don't make any mistake about it—Katie's a friend of mine all right. I liked her from the start."

"It seems to have been mutual."

"That's right. Thanks for letting me know. I'll look in and see her after awhile."

When she hung up, Juliet decided O'Hara was something of a fool. Probably—just for spite—he'd pay some silly attention to poor Katie and the kid would take him seriously. Men!

And Von Guerdon was as irritating to Juliet as O'Hara, but in a different way. He had a casual attitude towards Katie Schmidt as though she were a many young alley cat delivered to him to experiment upon.

"What have you done with her?" Juliet asked him a little later in his office.

Von Guerdon put down a shining steel instrument he had been polishing and looked utterly baffled at her question.

"The new patient—Katie Schmidt. Are you going to operate today?"

"Oh that one! I should say not. She won't be ready until tomorrow; the nurses are getting her used to clean sheets and soap."

Juliet's finely arched brows contracted.

"Don't you have any human feeling at all for the girl?"

"A little perhaps—not much," he admitted carelessly. "I'll operate as scrupulously as though she were my own sister. What more do you expect? Am I supposed to sympathize over her, too? No, it seems I'm a one-woman man."

Before Juliet could answer, his desk phone rang.

"Yes? Miss Rankin? Yes, she's here now. Just a moment." He handed Juliet the instrument. "It's McSpadden. He says he's been phoning all over for you."

She had not seen McSpadden since the disastrous evening at her apartment, and this was the first time she had heard from him. Evidently he had not recovered from the shock because his voice was still shaking.

"Miss Rankin—I really must see you. It's important. I wonder—would it be possible for me to call upon you at home this evening?"

"I'm afraid not," said Juliet, thinking quickly. "It was nothing against McSpadden—he liked him—but one of Mrs. McSpadden's explosions was enough. I won't be home this evening. I'm awfully sorry, but—"

"Then, let me come up to your office—or you come down to my laboratory. I really must see you alone. I wouldn't bother you at all unless it was so terribly important."

He sounded very much in anguish of soul but Juliet doubted that anything he could have said to say could possibly be terribly important—poor chap.

"All right," she said, "I'll see you in my office in five minutes."

Von Guerdon was looking at her with upraised brow and a smile that contrived to appear satanic.

McSpadden too, eh? You've got the poor chap bumping into the stone wall too? Don't you spare any man at all?"

He spoke with malicious humor glinting in his intelligent eyes.

Juliet wrinkled up her nose at him. "Well, I seem to be sparing you," she snipped, and was gone. (To Be Continued)

TOLEDO—Police intervened in a quarrel between two men over salvage rights at a city dump. The dispute was quickly settled, however, when one of them produced a document from the city street commission, granting him exclusive salvaging rights with the understanding that he keep the dump in orderly condition.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Stellar service rendered by the American Red Cross in bringing relief and emergency aid to thousands of stricken flood victims calls attention to the elaborate and far flung organization which can be mobilized in times of disaster and which serves continuously under normal conditions.

In its 55 years of existence as a chartered institution in the United States the Red Cross has penetrated every by-way of the nation in its program of emergency and disaster relief and its plan of assisting needy at all times.

Founded in this country by Clara Barton in 1864, the American Red Cross is an integral part of the International Red Cross which functions in time of war, and the League of Red Cross, devoted to peace time welfare work. It is particularly in the field of welfare that the Red Cross has become familiar to millions of needy in this country.

At the close of 1935, the American Red Cross had 3,711 chapters formed locally and organized into districts. Thus we find these chapters subdividing into branches with membership extant in all of continental United States and its outlying territorial possessions.

Through this network, composed of highly trained officials and volunteer workers, it is possible for the Red Cross to mobilize aid in the form of food, medical supplies, shelter, and transportation at almost any point on the continent with the utmost dispatch. Under the head of emergency operations comes disaster relief and first aid and lifesaving as evidenced during the recent floods.

Always Busy

However, the Red Cross is far from idle in normal times. Its pursuits under normal conditions include service and relief for disabled war veterans and their families, nursing service and public health service, and home hygiene. A still further extension of Red Cross activities was instituted this past year with the establishment of 15,000 highway first aid stations and mobile first aid units in connection with public utility companies, all of which originated with an accident prevention program, started last October.

Control of the entire Red Cross is supervised by national directors, headed by the president of the United States. National programs are executed under the supervision of the district organizations down through the various chapters and branches which number 9,112, according to the report of the national organization for 1935.

The work of supplying relief to more than 270,000 persons in a far-flung, inaccessible flood area in the shortest space of time—a problem presented by the recent flood—is the problem of Maurice Reddy, national disaster director of the Red Cross. A preliminary survey was first undertaken under the direction of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross; Gen. Mallin Craig, chief of staff, and George Dorn, secretary of war. A flood control and relief board including Admiral Adolphus Andrews, acting secretary of the navy, was formed at the call of President Roosevelt. This was accompanied by immediate dispatching of national officers to assist local chapters in aiding the flood sufferers. Simultaneously a rehabilitation plan was formulated to establish temporary homes for those who have lost everything.

Flood Expert Who Predicted Ohio's Crest At Cincinnati Explains "How"

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, March 28.—The man who forecast accurately the Ohio river's flood crest a week before it struck this rich tri-state area, sat before his charts today and described how the feat was possible through "long distance collection of data."

He is W. C. Devereaux, 62, flood expert and meteorologist. For 25 years, he has been "calling" each flood in its turn.

Declaring that canalization of the Ohio river has made forecasting of minimum stages in summer for control of pool stages "quite as important as the prediction of floods," Devereaux described how lockmasters at each of the stream's 50 dams take their "gauging-reading" at 8 o'clock each morning.

Starting at one dam, the report is relayed to the attendant at the dam below. He adds his own observation and relays it to the next. "And within a half hour, we have all the reports," Devereaux smiled, adding that within an hour, reports from the tributaries also are at hand, "giving us the entire picture."

There are four principal collecting centers, Pittsburgh, Huntington, W. Va., Cincinnati and Louisville, Ky.

Devereaux termed the system unique and said the summer "low-water forecasts provided a service not available until recently on any other river in the world. It is being put into use along the Mississippi.

Devereaux on March 18 announced definitely to an anxious populace that the Ohio would reach a flood crest here of between 58 and 60 feet. A day or two later he amended this slightly to say "between 59 and 60," but stuck to his original contention that local rains would not alter the situation here.

The river virtually "split the difference by touching 59.7 on Wednesday."

Unspent WPA Money In Ohio Is Checked

WASHINGTON, March 28. — A treasury department report showed today that $100,557,668 of the $219,164,540 in works progress money allocated to Ohio by President Roosevelt up to March 10 was still unspent.

Commitments, however, had been made for $41,563,811 more. Checks actually issued to Ohio WPA workers amounted to $118,006,872.

The report showed that of the $219,164,540 allocated expenditure of $215,140,298 had been approved and total obligations were $160,170,683.

Of checks paid, $32,067,139 went for the federal emergency relief administration, $41,230,793 to the state for WPA projects and $10,101,791 to CCC workers.

The biggest unexpended balances were $41,958,163 for WPA projects, $16,110,712 for grade crossing elimination, $12,486,805 for housing projects of the public works administration and $12,885,431 for loans and grants for housing projects.

Meanwhile, in Columbus Dayton H. Frost, Ohio federal emergency relief administrator, set May 1 as the deadline for submitting invoices on claims against the liquidating FERA.

Frost said claims presented after May 1 would have to go through the Washington office, forcing considerable delay in payment.

Borah Will Extend Drive to Northwest

WASHINGTON, March 28. — A move by Senator Borah of Idaho to extend his presidential drive into the northwest was believed to be imminent today. Friends expected him to announce that he would enter the Oregon primary May 15 in an effort to capture that state's 10 delegates to the Republican national convention.

The veteran senator decided yesterday not to enter California. He explained the intensity of his campaign to win the 109 convention delegates to be selected soon in Ohio and Illinois would not permit him to speak on the coast as friends had urged.

In Illinois, where he will contest with Borah, Colonel Frank Knox called last night for a "straight-forward and prompt solution" of the farm problem.

"If I had anything to do with writing the Republican platform," said the Republican candidate, "I would give Frank Lowden (former Illinois governor) the farm plank to write and he would do a good job of it."

Today's Pattern

SPORTS, FOR COTTON AND FOR STYLE

Pattern 2653

Here's one of the first and loveliest of warm-weather sports frocks. See how simple its design? How utterly bright and right it is for any sport from playing tennis to driving a car. You can participate or merely spectate in this, or adopt it for porch and garden wear. Note the new shoulder-breadth in those brief sleeves? They'll be grand and cool on blistering afternoons, as will the frock itself if you make it up in pique, peasant crash, shantung or washable sports silk. It's such an easy frock to make, too, that it might almost be called a "Beginner's fashion," which of course means it's just play for the more experienced. Be sure to "garnish" with bright buttons! The Anne Adams Sewing Instructor is included with this pattern.

Pattern 2653 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

Special Services Are Scheduled At Christian Church

Every-Member-Present - Sunday will be held tomorrow at the Christian church, Rev. C. F. Evans, pastor, announced today.

Sunday school and worship service will be combined and following the class session at 10:30 a. m., an assembly will be held in the church auditorium. Rev. Evans will preach a sermon on the subject "The Honor of the Church" at the assembly.

Special features will also be included on the assembly program. A souvenir of the Loyalty campaign, which begins April 15, will be given to each family present at the assembly.

Rev. Evans is endeavoring to reach every member of the church for enlistment in the Loyalty campaign. A registration will be made at the service Sunday morning.

Other services of the church are as follows:

6:30 p. m., Joint meeting of young people in the Methodist church. The topic will be illustrated with films.

7:30 p. m., Union service in the Methodist church, with Rev. Raymond Walter preaching.

Monday, 7:45 p. m., Sunday School Cabinet.

Tuesday, 7:45 p. m., The Women's Missionary Society will present a play, entitled, "A Chapel for Chalmers." This is an open meeting, and all persons interested are invited. There will be no admission charge.

Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., Boy Scout meeting.

Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., Midweek service.

Thursday, 7:30 p. m., Choir practice.

List Vocal Solo For Service At Baptist Church

A vocal solo by Fred Hutson, baritone, will be included in the morning services of the First Baptist church tomorrow. Rev. Arnold C. Westphal will also preach on the subject, "Christ at the Cross Roads."

Complete services for the church tomorrow and announcements for the week are as follows:

Bible school at 9:45 a. m. The pastor will talk to the children in the lecture room. Primary and beginner children will be in their departments, and the adult classes will meet as usual. Parents are always invited to the pastor's hour with the children.

After the lesson period, a visual summary of the lesson will be given on the subject, "The Four-square Kingdom." This will be the last Sunday of the quarter. New quarters will be handed out. Be present to get yours so you can have perfect record. Anyone who fails to gain 100 per cent in record can bring a copy of the Bible instead of the quarterly.

Young people service at 6 and 6:30. The Juniors are having a chorus period each Sunday night, when new hymns are being taught. The seniors are taking a 13 week study of "The Home." This is proving wholesome and interesting.

At 7:30 the pastor will preach on the subject, "When Dancing Is Turned to Mourning." At 8:30, the fellowship service will be held, in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott. There will be but one more such service after Sunday.

Announcements
Tuesday afternoon, the mothers of the church will meet at the parsonage for their monthly meeting. All mothers are invited.

Wednesday night, the midweek devotional service in the lecture room.

Supper for the basketball team and their parents is being planned. Watch for announcements.

Friday night the choir will rehearse. Preparation is being made for the Easter cantata which will be planned as a twilight service on Easter Sunday. This service in the early evening will take the place of the regular service.

P-T. A. Convention Opened At Canton

CANTON, March 28.—More than 1,000 delegates from 12 northeastern Ohio counties are in Canton today for the 14th annual convention of this district of the Ohio congress of parents and teachers.

The district has a total membership of 56,000 and includes the following counties: Wayne, Mahoning, Lake, Geauga, Medina, Cuyahoga, Ashtabula, Columbiana, Portage, Summit, Trumbull and Stark.

Dr. Franklin McNutt of the department of education at Wittenberg college will address the delegates tonight. Saturday the principal speaker will be Dr. Stephen K. Mahon of Toledo, assistant general manager of the Toledo Edison Co.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Knowledge gained while an enrollee of the CCC camp at the West Point Military Academy has won for Theodore A. Glowa, 24, an appointment as assistant post forester by the United States Military academy authorities.

St. John Church Services Sunday

Services for the St. John A. M. E. church tomorrow as announced today by J. B. Cooper, minister, are as follows:

At 9:45 to 10:15 a. m., Sunday school. Lesson-subject, "John Explains the Kingdom." Golden text, "They shall come from the east and from the west, and from the north and from the south, and shall sit down in the Kingdom of God."

"Each person in the world is personally responsible to answer God's call. Salvation is not confined to certain families. It does not flow in any particular racial blood strains. Salvation is offered to mankind everywhere, through the blood of Christ."

At 11 a. m., Gospel message. Subject, "Fond Meditation."

"When God permits a man to accumulate a vast store of this world's goods, this is not intended for a private hoard. The appetite for more personal riches may grow in the heart to such an extent that he will forget God and love his soul."

Announcements
No vesper service tomorrow. Cottage prayer meeting at 7:45 p. m., Wednesday. The place where the service will be held will be announced at the close of the morning service tomorrow.

The Sunday school Easter program will be presented during the vesper hour, Easter Sunday.

"Way of the Cross" Episcopal Theme
"The Way of the Cross" is the theme which Rev. Ian Robertson has taken for his sermon at the morning prayer of the Church of Our Saviour tomorrow. Passion Sunday.

Services for the church tomorrow and Wednesday follows:

8 a. m.—Holy communion.

11 a. m.—Morning prayer with sermon.

6 p. m.—Kappa Beta Kappa.

Wednesday, 7:30 p. m. Lenten devotionals and lecture on the subject "A Bird's Eye View of Church History." Choir rehearsal will follow this service.

Present Senior Junior Classes To Congregation

Members of the senior and junior confirmation classes of the Emmanuel American Lutheran church will be presented to the congregation at 7:30 tomorrow night at the church.

Rev. John Bauman, pastor, invites all members of the church and strangers to attend the service and hear the young people answer over 200 questions on the fundamental subject of the Christian religion.

Complete services for tomorrow, announcements for the week and a continuation of the article, "Thoughts For Lent" follow:

Sunday school with classes for all ages at 9 a. m. The pastor's Bible class meets at 9:15.

Divine worship service at 10 a. m. The pastor's sermon subject is, "Why Belong to the Church?"

German services at 11 a. m. Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the members of the senior and junior confirmations classes will be presented to the congregation.

Announcements
Monday evening at 7:30, meeting of the church council.

Wednesday evening at 7:45, German Lenten service.

Thursday evening at 7:30 English Lenten services.

Friday evening choir practice.

Thought For Lent
"And He openeth not His mouth," we read in Isaiah concerning the Lamb of God under the lash and oppression of suffering. The story is one of patience under trial and forbearance in pain.

Men have been known to grit their teeth and bear their lot stoically when they have made their own bed and are forced to lie in it. But when their portion is unpleasant and life's circumstances difficult because of factors which they do not control, protesting, complaining is the order of the day. To rise against some conditions and circumstances has great value. Injustice has been stamped out and slavery driven from the land by lifting head, heart, and hand in solemn protest. Not even the patient Lamb submitted to the evil of His day, nor are we to remain dormant when sin joins hands with sin to carry its nefarious business to destructive conclusion.

But in the line of duty is much that is not pleasing to the flesh. No path of duty that is not fringed with prickly briar and studded with edged rock. These are not the paths that lead to duty fulfilled and the glory of achievement. So of Christ we read—"who because of Glory that was before Him, endured the cross and despised the shame." So a warrior will laugh at his wounds for they are incidental to victory; so a prophet will go without honor; so a martyr will lose his life that his cause might ultimately triumph.

Such patience which takes the bitterness because of the eventual greatness of triumph, proves that the end and purpose of life is properly understood and valued.

St. Jacob's Reformed Church

The beginning of the St. Jacob's church dates back to the year 1807, when the record tells, John Stauch had been teaching school and occasionally preaching in a little log cabin which stood some distance back of where the church now stands. The country was mostly woodland and thinly settled.

Our ancestors were eager that their children should be able to read and write and John Stauch was welcomed as a teacher.

This action is recorded: "To the honor of God. Amen. In the year of our Lord 1811. We as regular members of the German Reformed and Evangelical Lutheran churches invited for the purpose of building a church and schoolhouse, to be a log house, 24x29 ft. and to be named Jacob's church."

It was named for Jacob Burger, who was active and benevolent and who presented the land for the cemetery near the church.

One acre of ground was purchased for $20 from Nicholas Burger and Mary, his wife, for the location of the church building. The deed was signed and delivered Dec. 9, 1811.

In January 1812, Rev. Mahneuschmidt was called by the Reformed branch of the church. He was said to be a man of commanding appearance, with a powerful voice, and when he spoke "as the oracle of God, the people listened with fear and trembling, so scathing was his denunciation of sin."

In 1825 a brick building was erected to replace the log structure. The building had a balcony on three sides and the pulpit was high above the congregation. The bricks were made in the field back of the church and those used for the floor were 8x8x2 1/4 inches in size.

In 1866 this brick building was torn down and rebuilt. This time it was a 14 ft. story. The cost of rebuilding and furnishing was raised by voluntary subscription and this method has ever since been followed and the modern method of church suppers and fairs has never been resorted to at St. Jacob's.

Some repairs and new furnishings were made in 1887.

The relation of the Reformed and Lutheran congregations worshipping together continued until 1879, when the Lutherans sold out their interest in the church property and afterward worshipped at Lisbon.

Pastors who have served this church are, Lutheran: John Stauch, John Shaeffer, John Keller, Rev. Herter, J. H. Hoffman, A. Segele, Samuel Baechler, F. Kranz, A. Zelle and A. B. Beerdeman; Reformed: Rev. Mahneuschmidt, E. Voigt, H. Sondecke, Henry Hess, Charles Zovisler, A. Wanner, S. A. King, G. M. Albright, J. T. Hale, M. H. Groh, R. B. Rerchard, J. J. Gruber, G. W. Beaver and the present pastor, Rev. Ray H. Klingaman.

In the early days a number of families living in the vicinity of Guilford attended regularly the services at St. Jacob's, coming on foot, fathers, mothers and little children together, the babies being carried. Many at this time came to church barefoot in summer.

The one hundredth anniversary of the organization of this church was celebrated Aug. 24, 1911. Two former pastors, Rev. J. T. Hale and Rev. J. J. Gruber, were present and took part in the service. Many former members returned for the occasion and it was a time of rejoicing and renewed interest.

S. A. Worman, Salem, was the chorister of the church for nearly 50 years and still, when present, ably assists with the church music.

For some time the need of a larger church building was felt. In the spring of 1927 plans were made to rebuild. On April 26, 1927, ground was broken for the addition to the church. The corner stone was laid May 29, and dedication services were held Oct. 16. This was made possible by a donation of $6,000 by Frank E. Guy, and liberal donations by other members. It was dedicated free of debt. The church then had 10 Sunday school rooms, auditorium, and a large basement which later was equipped as a dining room and kitchen, and now it is also used as Sunday school rooms for the five classes of the primary department.

On May 14, 1931, a shadow was cast over the congregation of this church, when Rev. Geo. W. Beaver, their pastor for 33 years, was called from this life. He preached his last sermon on Easter Sunday, 1931.

Rev. Ray H. Klingaman, the present pastor, was called to this pastorate in October, 1931.

At the present time this church is one of the most active rural churches in the state. It has a membership of 200. It has a departmentalized Sunday school, Christian Endeavor society, Woman's Missionary society, Girl's Missionary guild, Mission band, and Boy Scout troop, all of which are quite active.

This year is the 125th anniversary and will probably be observed sometime during the summer.

Two Salem Teams Survive First Round Tests In Tourney

Ten Teams Eliminated From "Little City" Meet In Contests Last Night

Quarter and Semi-Final Rounds Scheduled To Be Run Off This Afternoon With Final and Consolation Games Billed For Tonight

Ten teams were eliminated from Salem's annual "Little City" tournament at the Memorial building last night as all but two of the 12 first round contests were wiped off the boards.

The remaining two games in the first round will be played this afternoon along with contests in the quarter and semi-final rounds. The final game is scheduled for 9 tonight following a consolation fray at 8, in which the two losing teams of the semi-final round will tangle.

Two Salem teams, Sheen's Super Bulldogs and the Saxons, along with Sebring, Damascus, Winona, Vienna, and Southington moved into the quarter final round of the tourney by reason of victories in games last night.

First Game Today
The first game on today's program was to get under way at 12:45 p. m., with Hanoverton meeting Sheen's Bulldogs.

The East Palestine-Bergholtz game was the feature of last night's tourney program, which was reduced to eight games when Canfield and Leavittsburg failed to appear.

Two overtime periods were necessary before East Palestine gained the verdict in this contest, 25 to 23. The "sudden death" rule, giving the team scoring the first two points the victory, was used.

East Palestine was eliminated from the tourney in its second game last night, losing to Sebring, 39 to 24.

Cause Comment
An unheralded aggregation representing Vienna grange, six miles east of Warren on Route 60, caused considerable comment among the tournament "dopesters" by walling Columbia, 40 to 27.

Other scores of first round games were: Struthers 42, Beloit 21; Sheen's Bulldogs (Salem) 49, Louisville 18; Winona 33, Struthers 30; Saxon club (Salem) 41, McDonald 23; Damascus 35, Minerva 20.

East Palestine and Struthers were forced to play two games last night. Both teams were defeated in their second contests.

Cleveland Falls, Sallineville and Hanoverton are the only teams entered in the tourney that have yet to see action.

Linder Stars In Saxon Victory
The Saxon club cagers gave Salem teams entered in the tourney a perfect night by triumphing over McDonald Drugs, 41 to 23, in a contest that was featured by the sparkling play of "Mike" Linder.

Behind in the first half, McDonald rallied its only serious challenge of the game. The Saxons led, 18 to 14, at half time.

"Mike" Linder's 16 points led the scoring.

Struthers Loses To Winona
The Struthers New Deal Lunch cagers found themselves pushed from the tournament when they were defeated by Winona I. G. A.'s 33 to 20, in their second game of the night.

The contest was close all the way with Winona holding a slight advantage in the scoring column.

Big Ed Wilms, Mount Union cager star and winner of honorable mention on the All-Ohio college team, was largely responsible for the contest victory.

Inserted into the contest near the close of the second half Wilms pulled Winona out of a slump by scoring seven points.

Winona was out in front, 14 to 11, at the intermission.

Sheen's Bulldogs Win Easily
Ed Sheen's Bulldogs, the first Salem team to taste tournament action, had but little trouble in gaining a 49 to 18 victory over the Louisville Foresters.

With Herb Brown, Salem High school basketball coach, leading the way, the Sheen cagers held a big advantage throughout the contest.

Brown's individual performance in chalking up 12 points was the highlight of the contest.

Two Good Lookers Set Trotting Pace
Mrs. James "Debbie" Mulvey, one of the topnotchers among trotting drivers, is shown in the sulky driving "Rosaling" in workout against a stablemate at Seminole Park, Orlando, Fla. "Rosaling" is winter book favorite for the Hambletonian trot for 1936.

OWENS, PEACOCK DUELS RESUMED
Colored Track Stars To Clash Tonight In Exhibition Race
(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, March 28.—A 50-yard dash in three heats between Jesse Owens, of Ohio State and Eulace Peacock of Temple university today overshadowed events in public hall, where Cleveland's thirteenth annual interscholastic track meet got under way.

Peacock holds three victories over the Ohio State flash, who broke seven world's records last year.

The first of their event was scheduled for 8:15 o'clock tonight.

About an hour after the Owens-Peacock duel, Charley Beetham of Ohio State and George Arnold, former Cathedral Latin and Ohio State ace, will compete in a 660-meter run.

Forty-six schools of Cuyahoga county send entries but the list was reduced Thursday when all field events were completed.

NEW YORK GETS 1937 ABC EVENT
Routine Business of Congress Disposed of At Annual Meeting
(By Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, March 28.—Routine business disposed of, the American Bowling Congress settled down today for a steady grind of competitive play until the tournament winds up on April 14.

Among the highly rated teams who will be out to better the 3,065 high of Paist Blue Ribbon of New York are Hablerle Derby Ale of Syracuse, N. Y., seventh place winners last year, and Shalleross Inks of Philadelphia.

New York was selected as the 1937 tournament city by delegates named to the tune of a 39 to 24 score.

It was Manhattan has never staged an A. B. C. meet.

Charles W. Cushing, of Peoria, Ill., was elevated to the presidency, succeeding A. E. Jankowsky of Detroit.

Dr. Dix Dentists of Detroit, moved into fourth place in the 2,914 series.

Struthers Trips Beloit
Piling up a commanding lead in the first half, the Struthers New Deal Lunch cagers coasted to an easy 42 to 21 victory over Beloit Ex-Highs in the opening contest of the tourney.

Beloit was on the short end of the score throughout the game. The Ex-Highs failed to make a serious bid for the lead.

Change Churchill Downs For 62nd Annual Derby
LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 27.—With an attendance of 100,000 expected at the sixty-second running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 2, Col. Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf association and executive director of the Downs, peered out across the historic old plant and scratched his head.

"What we need," he mused, "is more pari-mutual booths and more conveniences to take care of all these thousands coming to the Derby."

Whereupon he called in the architect, the contractor and workmen, and said: "Hop to it; we want to spend about $100,000. And hop to it they did."

Make Haste
Today the workmen are making haste so everything will be in order for the year's greatest classic, and when they have finished the remodeling program will be checked something like this:

1. Quicker means of entering and leaving the track.

2. Twice as much shelter for club-house patrons in case of rain.

3. A new cafeteria in the clubhouse and a dining room twice as big.

4. Increased speed in the sale of pari-mutual selling and cashing windows, and pari-mutual windows in the clubhouse to do away with the "ground trips" of the past.

5. Obstacles removed which prevented steady views from clubhouse lawns.

The largest unit in the building program is construction of a three-story annex behind the clubhouse where it adjoins the grandstand. The top floor of the annex will contain a covered promenade and the pari-mutual bookies.

Use Tunnel Again
An old tunnel for horses, the grandstand and connecting the paddock with the track, will be placed in use again, and jockeys will weigh in at a platform being built at the front of the grandstand and adjacent to the tunnel.

M. Lawrence Aronson has succeeded Col. Arnold Strode-Jackson as executive vice president of the Kentucky Derby Festival association, which is planning all the "Mardi Gras" in connection with the running of the Kentucky Derby.

Other new officers are: James W. Henning, succeeding Harry Volz as president; Emil J. Racque, vice president, and W. E. Morrow of the Louisville Board of Trade, as treasurer.

Training Camp Slants
(By Associated Press)
St. Petersburg — The plague of injuries is striking at Joe DiMaggio early in his big league career. Dr. Painter the Yankee trainer, says Joe's spine wound is such that he will not be able to play until Monday at the earliest. Red Ruffing went through his first official workout on Huggins field yesterday.

No Appreciation
New Orleans—Sam Leslie, Terry's understudy at first base, was near his old home town of Pascagoula when the Giants played the Atlanta Crackers at Gulfport, Miss., yesterday. A delegation from the home town presented him a wrist watch, whereupon Sambo stepped to the plate and fouled out.

Divide Mound Duties
Tampa—The Cubs clash with the Cincinnati Reds today with Charley Root and Mike Kowalk assigned to divide the pitching.

Hildebrand, Milnar Pitch
New Orleans—Although the Indians have defeated the Giants three times so far this year, they aren't taking Terry's men too lightly. Manager Steve O'Neill has selected Oral Hildebrand and Al Milnar to pitch today in the first of two week-end games that precede the annual spring barnstorming trip.

Tigers Drop Eight
Sarasota—Eight men may be lopped from the Detroit Tigers roster before the squad heads north next Friday on a barnstorming tour with the Cincinnati Reds. The odds are expected to start Monday when Chet Laabs and Rudy York, infielders, probably will join the Milwaukee club at Lake Wales. Subsequent departures may include Buddy Bates and Chick Morgan, outfielders, and Don French, Joe Hare, Bill Phebus and Johnny Mercena, pitchers.

Can't Stop Yankees
St. Petersburg—The Bees, licked by the Yankees three times in a row, play to use Danny MacFadden, Ray Benge and Ken Chitwood on the mound today in an attempt to stop the McCarthy-men.

Optimistic
Tampa—Charley Grimm of the Cubs says "I see no reason why we shouldn't win the next world series." Derringer and Brennan were scheduled to perform on the mound for the Reds today.

Indianapolis Must Fill Holes to Have Chance In Association Pennant Race
Manager Wade Killefer Confident That Vacancies Will Be Filled; Indians Finished Fifth In Flag Chase Last Year
INDIANAPOLIS, March 28.—Indianapolis needs a second baseman, two slugging outfielders and probably one other pitcher to be a real contender in the American association pennant chase this year.

Manager Wade Killefer and owner Norman A. Perry are confident, however, that by the time the opening game is called on April 12 the holes will be filled.

The Indians finished fifth last season, with outfielder Johnny Cooney, the association batting champion, the slugging Riggs Stephenson and Second Baseman Vince Shrock in the lineup.

The trio is gone, Cooney and Shrock to the Brooklyn Dodgers and Stephenson to Birmingham of the Southern association, this summer.

Fred Fausett, a strapping outfielder obtained from the Pacific Coast league is being groomed to take Cooney's place. Como Cotel, who batted 320 last year, is the only regular outfielder back in uniform.

May Be Sensation
Bob Fausett, young third baseman obtained from Galveston of the Texas league, may prove to be a sensation, according to owner Perry.

Fausett replaces Fred Bedore, who has been sent to the Pacific Coast league.

Mickey Heath will be back at first base and Otto Bluege at shortstop. The first string catcher again will be Johnny Riddle, with Him Crandall, son of Doc Crandall, the old New York Giant pitcher, or another rookie as his assistant.

Jim Turner, Vance Page, Steve Bolen, Bud Logan, and Hal Chamberlain, all veterans, are counted on as starting pitchers. In addition, the Indians have Bud Tinkering, who used to hurl for the Chicago Cubs. He was with Columbus in the American association last year.

BRUNO'S HOPES ARE INCREASED

Court of Pardons Called For Monday Session To Consider Plea

The Hauptmann case, came in the midst of a last effort by Hauptmann's chief of counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher, to have the court of pardons, which Governor Hoffman heads, consider a new plea for commutation of the death sentence. The court was called today to meet at 11 a. m. Monday to consider the clemency petition.

A previous appeal to the pardons court was denied. Hauptmann's counsel said he had "new evidence" on which to base a request for a new trial if the court of pardons appeal fails. He decided to say what the evidence was.

More Delay Is Seen

The general opinion in sources close to the case today was that the governor's increased activity is indicative of his intention to delay the execution, even if there is a question in protection circles concerning the legality of such action.

There is a precedent for a reprieve, it was pointed out, in the action many years ago of Governor Edward I. Edwards, who reprieved a condemned man even though the 90-day period following conviction—the legal period in which a reprieve may be granted under the constitution—had expired.

In two formal statements yesterday, Governor Hoffman called upon the attorney general to show him the way to grant a reprieve so that his investigation of the case could be continued.

In his second statement of the day, Governor Hoffman said there were "sufficient grounds to question the veracity" of three state witnesses: Millard White, Amandus Hochmuth and Charles B. Rossiter, all of whom placed Hauptmann in New Jersey.

Theater Attractions

Gary Cooper and Marlene Dietrich in "Desire" showing at the State Sunday and Monday.

"Desire", Marlene Dietrich's new film for Paramount, will be shown at the State Sunday and Monday. Gary Cooper appears opposite the exotic German star. These two were last seen together in the picture, "Morocco".

Miss Dietrich has a new director in "Desire", Frank Borzage. This may be, or may not be, the last film the star will make in America. She says she is dissatisfied with conditions in Hollywood and has left. It is said she will make an English film.

Plays Jewel Thief's Role

In "Desire" Miss Dietrich plays a continental beauty and international jewel thief. Safe after a daring robbery, she flees the scene of the crime and meets an American engineer on a vacation. Romance enters the picture. This film should be catalogued as a sophisticated comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday the State presents Paul Muni in "The Story of Louis Pasteur." Muni is reported by the critics to be perfectly cast as the great French chemist and bacteriologist who contributed so much to science. With Muni are Josephine Hutchinson, Anita Louise, Donald Woods, Fritz Leiber and many others.

The Dionne quintuplets, Yvonne, Cecile, Marie, Annette and Emilie, come to the State Thursday, Friday and Saturday in "The Country Doctor." Jean Hersholt plays Dr. Dafeo. Others in the cast are June Lang, Slim Summerville, Michael Whalen and Dorothy Peterson.

The film of the quintuplets was photographed under the supervision of Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo.

"Ghost Goes West" Tonight at the State appears the English film, "The Ghost Goes West", starring the popular Robert Donat.

Sunday and Monday the Grand offers a double feature bill. One film is a romance entitled "Two in the Dark" and the other a comedy starring Zasu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell, "The Affair of Susan".

"Two in the Dark" stars Walter Abel, who played in "Three Musketeers", and Margot Grahame who appeared opposite Victor McLaglen in "The Informer." Others in the cast are Wallace Ford, Gail Patrick, Allan Hale, Leslie Fenton and Eric Blore.

The Grand tonight is showing the western, featuring Ken Maynard, entitled "Heroes of the Range".

Tale of a Tail — There Is None Now

Harry Kelly's cat had roamed the neighborhood for quite some time and often crossed the Stark Electric railway tracks to and from Kelly's residence at 360 West State st. And not once during its meanders, did Mr. Cat come to blows with the interurbans that rode the rails.

Yesterday, however, the feline was a split second too late and he came home minus a tail.

Kelly is assistant to City Electrician Lee Saunders.

EDEN'S FOREIGN POLICY PRAISED

Reich Emissary To Confer With Foreign Secretary Today

By CHARLES P. NUTTER. (Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

LONDON, March 28.—Joachim Von Ribbentrop, seeking Great Britain's latest word before returning to Berlin to report to Adolf Hitler on the Rhineland crisis negotiations conferred with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today at the foreign office.

Informed sources said the Reich emissary sought an explanation of parts of Eden's speech to the house of commons yesterday. In which the foreign secretary warned Germany a conciliatory gesture of some kind was necessary to solve the Rhineland impasse, but also advised France to try to deal with Der Fuehrer with an open mind.

Perturbed at Address Hitler's ambassador at large was understood to be perturbed by some sections of Eden's address—a reaffirmation of Britain's obligations under the Locarno pact which was acclaimed generally by the British as the greatest of his career.

The German delegation it was understood, was agitated by the emphasis Eden laid on the military understanding among the Locarno powers, on contrast to the comparatively fleeting references to the proposals Hitler has extended for new treaties.

This feeling of the House of Commons apparently was less warm for Germany than had been popularly supposed.

All British parties praised Eden's foreign policy statement, declaring Britain stood by its Locarno pledge to be ready to fight for France and Belgium if they were attacked by Germany, but calling on the Reich for some new conciliatory move.

The foreign secretary's address surprised political quarters by its demands that France have an open mind, as well by the call for Germany to "do something to allay the anxieties of Europe."

Strengthened Attitude

The results of Eden's statement and the House of Commons debate were interpreted authoritatively to mean a strengthening of the British government attitude in looking to Germany for substantial assistance in building a new peace structure.

War-time Prime Minister David Lloyd George, leading the liberal opposition to the government in the debate, warned against what he called dangers in a military pact with France under the Locarno plan for a Rhineland settlement.

Virtually every speaker succeeding Lloyd George criticized him for an alleged pro-German attitude because he felt that treaties, including that of Versailles which demilitarized the Rhineland, were open to revision.

Chief Can't Swipe Police Chairs Now; They've Got Locks

Equipment in the officers quarters of the remodeled city jail was swelled today by the addition of two new pieces of furniture. And, there's a story behind it all.

Two weeks ago upon completion of the jail repairs several local merchants sent in various donations for the officers room.

There was a desk lamp, clock and various other small articles but in addition, two modernistic chairs and covering for the floor.

Chief Ralph Stoffer admired the chairs, so well in fact, that they now repose in his office on the second floor.

The patrolmen put up a howl. But Safety Director Vic Donahay had a scheme.

In a few spare moments, Donahay and the night patrolmen, George Reash and James Hassey constructed two make-shift chairs using logs and old boards resembling driftwood.

When Chief Stoffer entered the jail this morning the new chairs were there. The chief couldn't take them, however.

Heavy chains and a padlock, weighing close to two pounds, held them fast to the wall.
